I liked this paragraph:

"The South has changed more in the past fifteen years than it did in the previous fifty. The old mule-and-mud go-round is gone. The machine has us in is maw and some of us like it and some of us don't. There's no Southern accent to a tractor's exhaust, no doo-a-doo to a loom, no hush puppies on the assembly line and no buttermilk in an oil well."

I call that excellent writing, and it's sad that James Street had to die at only 51.

Cotton has gone to California, and cowboys have come to Florida. And Uncle Tom's Cabin is a museum piece. There's a washing machine on the cabin's front porth. You see scads of them all over Dixie.

In his article, Street went on to discuss topical headings about the South. He passed off the honeychsie buffoons for what they are and pointed to the correct speech of such a North Carolina product as Edward R. Murrow. Southern speech is basically Elizabethan, leavened by African. Yes sir, and after discussing Southern speech, Street got off on Southern music, Southern cooking, etc. I remember this sentence about the music: "The hillbilly music you hear almost every time you turn on a radio is a mixture of ballads, popular songs, hymns, hoedowns and stomps, played maybe by Brooklyn boys dressed like movie cowboys and twanging the way Tennessee mountaineers don't twang."

As to Southern hospitality, Street wrote: "Whenever you hear people brag about it, keep your fingers crossed." He added, "Real hospitality is never emblazoned on the doormats."

So . . . once again .. save your Confederate money, boys .... the South will rise again!

Schools are in session .. and so it is that perchance we might browse a bit about books. Here I am seated in front of a portable typewriter at a desk in my "den" at home. I have just re-arranged the den, and whittled it down mostly to books. I had all manner of collections, but most of them have taken up new quarters in the basement "museum." The den was no place for them. Including my autographed picture of Sally Rand .. a pair of miniature boxing gloves autographed by Jack Demsey, and the card from Grauman's Chinese Theatre autographed for me by Lana Turner. I did keep on a shelf the four silver dollars I managed to save from a visit to Las Vegas, Nev. and a tiny music box given me a top man of Coca-Cola in Atlanta, a teakwood pen carved from the deck of the USS Missouri, a model of the Santa Maria, and a few other knick-knacks .. but I am really trying to ronvert the den into a place for serious reading and study. I have five bookshelves the length of the room. They will hold many a volume. I have the Bible my mother placed in my trunk when I went away to college in 1922. And a second well-used Bible is the one that belonged to my mother-in-law the late Mrs. Ola Patteson. I like that verse over in Ecclisatics 9:10. And there is a revised Translation. Wish I had a Moffet's and Bishops' Translation, too. And then my Prayer Book: one of the grandest and most treasured volumes ever composed. My copy is signed by our friend, Herbert N. Tucker, Jr. and by Bishop Gunn, who confirmed me. An entire section on a shelf is given over to religious books, including a copy of the Koran. And then there is a section of books on Confederate history, a favorite subject with me. Included beside them is a copy of Phatt's History of the Civil War and a prize volume, "General Robert E. Lee After Appomattox. Then there are two sections of reference books. Can't get along without the reference books. A set of the works of Edgar Allen Poe, a volume of the complete works of Robert Burns a wel-worn set of Shapespeake; a book or so on the stars, and a few novels, such as Far From the Madding Crowd by Thomas Hardy. And many volumes of potery: Words-worth, Shelly, Byron, Keats, Alfred Noyes, Browning, Holmes, and even Robert Service.. And a few essays by Emerson, some biography, a bit of Balzac, Rabelais, and a mix-up of randon books so there will be something for any mood, from Rain-tree County to.

Anti-Freeze Panties

A warmer, softer and absolutely non-scratchy type of knitted underwear for men, women, and children is now available in leading department stores. Improvements are due to a new ingredient, dynel, the synthetic fiber. Used in a harmonious blend with cotton, this fiber contributes cosy, comfortable warmth yet is feather-light in weight. It is cashmere-soft and positively will not scratch the most sensitive skin. The underwear washes easily, dries more quickly, without shrinking or stretching, and of course needs no ironing. It's very, very durable and then too, moths dislike the taste. So for winter sports of all kinds or for just everyday living, make dynel-cotton undies your personal antifreeze this winter. They come in long johns, knee-length panties, briefs, and vests in assorted sizes and colors at a miniature price.

IN MEMORIAM

GOWIN: In loving memory of our dear Mother and Grandmother, Mrs. Ellen O. Gowin, who passed away 13 years ago, Oct. 1, 1941.

A precious one from us has gone,
A voice we loved is still.
A place is vacant in our home,
Which we can never fill.
In our home that is lonesome today.
Death is a heartache no one can heal.
Memories are a keepsake no one can steal.
Beautiful memories are all we have left of the one we loved and will never forget.
—Sadly missed by Daughter, Mrs. Wesley Stanley and Children. (1tp)

IN MEMORIAM

NOWLIN, Mrs. A. B. In beloved memory of our dear mother, Emma W. Nowlin, who passed away three years ago, Sept. 1951.

A wonderful mother, woman and wife,
One who was better God never made;
A wonderful worker, so loyal and true,
One in a million, that mother, was you.
Just in your judgment, always right.
Honest and liberal, so upright;
Loved by your friends and all whom you knew.
Our wonderful mother, that mother was you.
—Her Devoted Children. (1tc)

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of our dear husband and father, John D. Harris, Sr., who left us two years ago today, September 28, 1952.
God gave us a wonderful husband and father,
One of the world's very best;
And when on earth his work was done,
God called him home to rest.
Oft to our hearts comes a bitter cry,
Why, oh why did he die?
Then comes the answer, soft and sweet,
He is not dead, he is just asleep.

-Your loving wife and children. (1tp)

IN MEMORIAM

In sad but loving remembrance of our dear father, A. B. Ferguson, who passed away two years ago today, Sept. 29, 1952.
Two years ago, dear Father,
You quietly slipped away,
To rest in the arms of Jesus.
We will never forget that day.
Some may think we have forgotten you,
When they see us smile,
But they little know the sorrow
That we suffer all the while.
No one knows our sorrow,
A few have seen us weep.
But the way our hearts ache
For you, dear daddy, and wish
You were here to help to guide us
Along as you always did.
All we can do now, dear daddy,
Is remember the lesson you taught
Us and try to follow you,
For we know you are safe with
Jesus where no harm can reach you
And waiting to greet us
When we get there.
As we go to your grave and
Place flowers we breathe a prayer
That some day we will meet you
Where there will always he happiness.
—Sadly missed by
Your Children. (1tp)

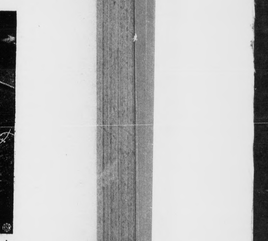
Versatile, Young Co-Ed Holds Many Home-Canning Awards



Everywhere, it seems, home canning enthusiasts are appearing in lower and lower age brackets. Young people, for instance, like Beatrice Luoma, the charming 20-year-old Finnish-American girl who, over the past nine years has won innumerable blue ribbons for her outstanding work in home canning.

"I've been home canning as long as I can remember; canning everything I could lay my hands on," says this attractive young co-ed. As the oldest of nine children, living on a farm near Floodwood, Minnesota, Beatrice helped her mother with canning as a youngster; started winning home-canning prizes from her first days as a member of the 4-H when she was a mere 11 years old, and has continued rolling up a high score for her home canning ever since. In 1953, she demonstrated at the St. Louis County Fair (Minnesota), where she also won the championship for her canned vegetables; and that same year she took the blue ribbon at the Minnesota State Fair.

Last year, Beatrice put up over 100 quarts of pickles with the results again proving this young lady's remarkable ability for successful food preservation. Her sliced cucumber pickles, which she says are more tender when peeled, are made like this:

6 cups sliced cucumbers
1 pound onions
1 green pepper
¼ cup salt

Wash and peel cucumbers. Slice thin. Peel and slice onions. Seed and shred pepper. Mix vegetables, add salt, cover with lid and let stand at least 3 hours.

Place in a colander to drain excess liquid; and then rinse well by running cold water over the mixed vegetables. Add to hot syrup (given below) and heat slowly to just below boiling, stirring occasionally. Put in Ball Mason Jars; seal with Ball Dome Lids.

Syrup: Mix ingredients, bring slowly to boiling point and boil five minutes.

2 cups brown sugar
½ tsp. turmeric
¾ tsp. ground clove
1 tbsp. mustard seed
½ tsp. celery seed
2 cups mild cider vinegar

In two years, when Beatrice Luoma graduates from the University of Minnesota, where she's now majoring in home economics, her experience and knowledge in the homemakng arts will become doubly useful. For she plans to combine a career in Extension work with marriage to a young geologist.

Today, the many hobbies of this popular young college girl include square dancing, water skiing, church work, writing for a school paper, and cheer leader. But of them all, home canning, she finds, is the most challenging and rewarding. And, it was due in large measure to her keen interest in, and aptitude for, home canning that this personable young woman eventually decided upon a career in the home economics field.
